

Elaine Edwards

Hi. I live near the Delaware River. But that should not matter. Fracking is a thing that will soon come to be universally regarded as one of the many monolithic blunders made by the human race. We are moving swiftly past this kind of wasteful, filthy technology, towards cheaper, safer, healthier ways to meet our needs, and that is where we should be putting our investments. Thank you.
Elaine Edwards, American, Earthling.