

Mary Westervelt

The Delaware River Basin has only recently - and only partly - recovered from the damage from coal mining. Do not undo the progress by allowing fracking or the transferral of fracking wastes or products through the Delaware River Basin.

I am opposed to fracking for these reasons:

1. Fracking uses and pollutes enormous amounts of water.
2. We need to be investing in non-carbon sources of energy, not finding more ways to burn more carbon.
3. We need to be making lifestyle and infrastructure changes to reduce energy use - not putting more effort into extraction.