An historic river is endangered by the same "colonial" greed that made it an irremovable part of our history. Instead of our lives being decided upon the whims of a far-away king, corporate feifdoms from Exxon-Mobil on down move as if we, the people are the enemy. Since they, the corporations, can obtain money from NOTHING, the citizens, the aliens, the wildlife, and the planet itself, have become a nuisance ready to be defiled, humiliated and eventually exterminated by greedsters whose naked racism, misogyny and homo/trans/xenophobia have contributed to the installation of a traitor in the White House. They are all complicit in this enabling of treason and must be denied all permitting until they are removed from power. Corporations are NOT people, my friend and the most powerful of them will tell you: they're BETTER than people, as their actions from the beginning of the Industrial Revolution have proven in the courts and across our Earth.
