

Betty Trentlyon

Hydrofracking is a disaster for the environment and human health. The toxic chemicals used in fracking contaminate ground water and the methane released during the process poisons the air and adds to the huge problem of climate change.