

Priscilla Aleman

This method of resourcing energy is not in alignment with the surrounding environment and long term goals of preservation of our natural resource and land use. Much research is being done on other forms of energy like nuclear fusion that has come a long way since the 50s and should be considered more seriously.