We are farmers of organic vegetables and our farm is located on the river's edge in Wayne County, PA. Our business and the food of thousands would be affected if the river is contaminated. It is documented, it is true and real that over 9,000 public complaints about environmental problems in shale gas drilling areas have been reported in Pennsylvania; 4,400 of those are surface or groundwater-related. Even with regulation, fracking pollution is a fact of life and cannot be effectively controlled.
