

Craig Thomas

The Delaware River Basin Commission has proposed new regulations that will allow disposal of fracking wastewater in the Delaware River watershed, the source of drinking water for over 15 million people. The proposed regs will also allow fracking companies to take fresh water from the watershed for use in fracking.

I don't want any discharge of fracking wastewater; No extraction of water for fracking; No fracking activity of any kind in the watershed I don't want Philadelphia to turn into a Flint Michigan... Fracking is so wrong and the waste from it is wrong. leave nature alone.