

Deia Schlosberg

The science is abundantly clear. Study after study shows that fracking wells and pipelines fail and release chemical contaminants into the air and water. This is unacceptable, especially when there are proven alternatives for both energy AND resin production.