Question: Has independent unannounced testing of all chemicals being placed into and removed from the ground been published? Last I knew, the chemicals used were an "industry secret". How can these operations be allowed without knowing the impact/exposure/risk of the chemicals and intermediates that they may be converted to?

Question: Is all of the natural gas harvested (at the expense of mother nature and human health) consumed in the United States, to offset reliance on foreign oil? If not, then why are we doing it? This was the premise for allowance.
