

Marc Silverman

Rules about public lands should ALWAYS include the public in the decision making process and consider the needs of the public first before private individuals, companies or corporations! No loopholes or leaving out the public interest via open-ended agreements without clear deadlines, clear time for public review and clear terms of use! Crucial decisions should not be made behind closed doors without public input.