

Douglas McCray

No public agency should limit ANY communication from or to the public that they serve. There is no reason for the public to not know what is going on at DRBC and no reason why the commission should not take the time to read any and all public comments. The DRBC is to serve the public and there is absolutely no reason for not paying attention to public comments.

Any limiting of communications is usually because there is something shady going on. Or at least the perception of such.