Dear Commission,

The people that are impacted by DRBC decisions must be kept informed and be allowed to participate in the decision making process. These are our homes. WE do not want our health compromised. We do not want our land, water, and air compromised. Future generations should not have to wonder if their family's property is contaminated. Unfortunately families in areas where fracking is taking place outside of the DRB are presently begging for justice. Their land, water, and air have been compromised and they have no recourse. Many are being forced to abandon their homes to preserve their health. This is unacceptable and frankly it's un-American.

To ensure the health of our DRB community the public must be able to take part in decisions that affect them. Without access to ALL the information that the commissioners and the director have access to, it's impossible to do this. Any rule that limits this access or gives over-reaching control to either the director or one of the commissioners of the DRBC is unfair to the communities that the DRBC serves.
