

Dale Tomlinson

Any curtailment of public access in commission decision-making is an affront to those for whom you work and should be reversed/the proposal killed. You work for the public and their concerns are worth consideration in the full light of day whence you take full and open responsibility for your decisions on behalf of those who pay your salaries.

Any other action is a dereliction of your sworn oath and duty.