

Sandra L Materi

Boysen Reservoir and the Bighorn and Wind Rivers are simply too special to pollute. Boysen Reservoir lies on the eastern edge of the Wind River Reservation, provides the municipal drinking water for Thermopolis, is an extremely important recreational fishing and boating spot, and is used by surrounding landowners to irrigate. The section of river just downstream of the reservoir is a blue ribbon trout stream and the area of the reservoir that will be most heavily impacted is important sauger habitat.