

Ann Jacobs

Having worked in the energy industry in WY for 25 years, I can tell you that fracking is a danger to the environment. It can and does cause earthquakes in some regions and the water used has benzene as well as other undisclosed chemicals. We have had three accidents in two months including one fatality from rollovers with trucks hauling fracking water and one oil field equipment just west of Laramie. All three accidents are being investigated presently.