

Terry Solon

There are enough problems in purifying down stream water without complicated the expense for humans receiving city water; but plants, animals and human beings outside of such treatment plants will be put into a life threatening situation.