I can't imagine that dumping millions of gallons of waste into our water system can be good for anyone living or visiting this area.

As a Thermopolis business owner and a Wyoming native I'm appalled that this is even a consideration.

I never thought I'd see a day when someone would think that adding poison to our water, which we have such little of, is a good idea.

Make the company build a bigger treatment center or limit the output of the oil company. I know that's not the popular solution but we don't need to become another Pavilion.
