How could you even consider allowing the discharge of millions of gallons of untreated water from these drilling operations. The companies involved must be required to treat this discharge or find some other way of disposing of it. Dumping polluted water into tributaries of the wind river and Boysen Reservoir has serious consequences for all residents and life downstream.

The wind river and Bighorn are premier trout streams, which provide the local economies with hundreds of thousands of economic benefit and many jobs. This also must be considered in the decision process. One of the tributaries has also been "killed" by a spill this spring. We don't need any more poisons entering our streams.

Thank you.
