When there was a request for additional discharge volumes, it was not simply denied, but more stringent regulations and restrictions were added to the permit holder???. How is it that this can happen when there is an existing permit? I'm concerned that perhaps the public's best interests are not being represented and that perhaps someone has a hidden agenda here. This project has been reported on and anticipated by many. It's beyond unfortunate that Aethon is getting the rug pulled out from under them. As I understand it, this decision might just put an end to their project.
