From what I've come to understand is, it's not like everyone makes it seem. This big oil covered smoking truck that backs right into Boysen to unload this toxic oil/water killing everything in sight. It's discharged a long ways away of just salt water. Filter salt water through miles of sand and dirt I imagine it's better than the towns drinking water. I don't see the problem in the whole thing and doesn't seem that anyone has addressed a problem.
