

Caryn Moxey

I have reviewed the permit again and still feel like this is a terrible place for this type of mine. The nearby ranches are too small, it is too close to major waterways, and I am confused how it can be in any way profitable by scaling back 90 percent. I am not opposed to mining, but to build something this close to town and residential areas seems like an attempt to build something that will be unsustainable for the residents and mine owners in the long run.