

Priscilla Dillon

Thank you for this opportunity to comment.

At a time when the coal industry is declining and many mines are facing difficulties, there is no need for another coal mine.

The Tongue River Valley is a beautiful area. One hundred years ago, in a totally different time, there were multiple mines. They are gone.

The Valley provides valuable agricultural use and development should protect the aesthetic and economic uses that are currently provided.