

Jackie Van Mark

By allowing an operation like this to move forward shows the belief in good old American ingenuity. If people are upset about carbon emissions this project laughs in its face by using those emissions for a totally new way of making products. We can't just stop mining coal. We need to figure out how to reduce via operations like this.