I would like to start out by saying that no, I do not live in Arkansas but I still consider it my home and a home I plan to return to one day soon. In the 23 years I lived in Fayetteville The Ozarks and the streams and rivers associated with it were my playground and it is devastating to see what could be done to them. I've traveled many places across the country and the ozarks are a true gem that needs to stay intact. While understanding that hog farming is a very large employer of people across the buffalo watershed, I think they need to pursue other options. Please do not let them tamper with our precious and often underappreciated beauty that truly makes "the natural state" "the natural state"
