

John Carter

There is unquestionable evidence presented that C&H Farms has impaired the quality of the Buffalo National River. Unquestionable.

For over thirty (30) years, my family and I have traveled to the Buffalo National River. I consider it my top destination in the United States.

The river is now riddled with thick green algae which has severely impaired the ability for sport fisherman to enjoy the waters and is an extreme eyesore and nuisance for anyone who wants to enjoy a day on the River.

The ADEQ should be ashamed of this fact, as the past irresponsibility of your agency has allowed for this natural treasure to have become a natural disaster given the nitrate and phosphate pollution being pumped into our River via the Big Creek watershed from the spreading of manure.

What's done is done, but it's now time for your agency to display responsibility for its past bad act and repair the damage it has created to our state and national treasure and shut this commercial, mass-scale hog farm down.

Sincerely,
