

april young

from everything I have read about the wolves in washington it sounds like fish and game needs to step up and manage them better and help protect them, possibly give incentives to ranchers to motivate them to leave the wolves alone until completely necessary