

Frosty Hollow Ecological Restoration

WDFW continues to bend its recovery plans to the will of a single wildlife hating eastside rancher. That is not science. It is politics trumping science. Please accept the genuine science which has been and continues to be developed on how best to accommodate both wolves and public lands ranching - giving precedence in the event of conflict to the wolves, whose habitat is being infringed by the ranchers. We note that Conservation Northwest has developed a very successful range rider program to benefit both wolves and ranchers. We insist that WDFW require that all public lands ranchers participate in that program. There is no scientifically valid reason to kill wolves. There are many scientifically valid reasons to support the return of wolves to their former territory. The practice of killing wolves must stop immediately.
