

Nick Sebesta

In my opinion, wolves are fully recovered in Wa state. We need state management immediately. The NE corner is overrun with wolves and residents cannot do anything legal about it. We need to stop pandering to leftist groups that don't even live in this state. Idaho has a great model, follow it and everybody will be happy. Wolves will still exist, but they will fully fear man and will have smaller pack sizes and thus will do less damage to ungulates and livestock.