

Elaine Fischer

Healthy ecosystems NEED large predators to keep prey species from overpopulating, overgrazing, causing soil erosion, widespread disease and starvation. Wolves are a KEYSTONE species - and are a valuable, important and necessary part of a functioning environment. Start managing the ENTIRE ecosystem by using SCIENCE FACTS - NOT cattle ranchers and hunters superstitions and greed!