

Thomas Fishler

It's nice that you guys have a recovery plan for wolves that have been extinct in this area and introducing a different species of wolves. when are you going to have a recovery plan for all the deer elk and other species that are being destroyed by these wolf? and when are you going to pay back the farmers for each cow that has been destroyed by your wolves you are letting go do what they want? The thing you're not telling the public is that you're not saying that these wolf are going out and will only take a hindquarter or just kill an animal and then leave it there not going after sick. and you're taking people's opinions that live in Seattle people do not see what's going on in wildlife you need to listen to the people that are in Eastern Washington and the farmers. And when you have meetings they should be in Eastern Washington where the wolf are not in Seattle or Tacoma or wherever so that you can actually hear the people that live around the wolf's voice their opinion