

Cihltli Ocampo

Please do not allow these magnificent creatures to become more endangered and possibly extinct! It is well known that wolves are an integral part of their ecosystems bringing balance and harmony to their surroundings. Their social structures and social behaviors are also worthy of study. As the origin of our domesticated canines wolves should be honored and protected. Please take the public into consideration when creating a plan for wolf conservation and management. Though there are some who consider them a nuisance, this is a very small, yet very vocal minority. We must learn from the indigenous people of this earth and learn to live in harmony with animals and the natural world. Our hunger for "progress" has led us down a path of vast destruction of our environment fueled by greed and ignorance. Be the teachers of what could be a great generation of Americans committed to conservation and balance. We can live in a world where ALL living things are considered when laying the foundation for new neighborhoods, buildings, roads, industry and farms. Please keep these comments in your hearts when you create your plan. Wolves have much to teach us and we must find a way to keep them protected under the law.
