

Debbie Humphries

Wolves are in no way recovered in Washington state when we have wildlife services killing entire packs in order for cattle to have the land. Ranchers who work to coexist are not the problem...it the few who will not and want all wolves gone. The killings are not based on science and they are not working! They create chaos in the pack and leave unskilled hunters to prey on livestock. Our wildlife needs a place to be on our lands...but instead there are livestock everywhere. It is 2019...not 1900. We know much more now about ecosystems and the role of top predators and the damage from livestock. Tired of the fear mongering from those who spread non factual propaganda about wolves stalking children and approaching humans. Wolves simply do not approach humans just as feral domestic animals do not. They simply need to eat and live in peace! Far to much money being spent collaring and killing wolves and other top predators! Thank you for considering my comments.