

John Bremer

Stewardship of our environment should focus on reconnecting natural areas minimally impacted by development. Stewardship of our environment should also focus on excluding and minimizing the impacts of development, of the harvesting of wood and fiber, and of factory farming. Stewardship of our environment requires an honest cost benefit analysis of the government subsidy of factory farming, particularly the cruel inhumane factory farming of our fellow creatures. The unfortunate involvement of our fellow creatures the grey wolves with the cruel inhumanity of the factory farms should not compel the people of Washington to take part in hunting our fellow creatures for profit.
