

Tim Damon

In lieu of wolves becoming delisted I believe we should manage them as any other species we currently manage. With science and conservation goals of maintaining a healthy population and opening a hunting season for non-tribal members, a.k.a. the public. Wolf numbers as with other predators should be managed to maintain a healthy ungulate population. Too many predators are a bad thing, as well as too many deer or elk is a bad thing for the populations of each species. We should work towards a balance for our wild species.