

David Rego

I am a hunter. I hunt for food for my family. I need healthy Deer and elk for my family. I can not eat a wolf and wouldn't even want to touch it from fear of Hydatid Disease. Why an invasive species of wolf with a known lethal disease is allowed to spread at all is a huge concern to everyone who is unaware that this was done. We need to start over with the native species from the Rocky mountains not a species from the great northern Canada ...way different animal. All game animals need to be managed if we are ever going to have healthy populations. Wolves and Grizzly bears don't do well with human contact so they need to be restricted to certain areas with little or no human contact for the animals safety. We see many of these animals destroyed every year due to contact. I would like my family to be able to enjoy the woods for years to come but feel it is already to late for our Elk herds and Moose populations. I've seen a steady decline every year I go into the woods. More and more wolf sign and bear scat way to many apex predators no prey left.