

Kit Cartmell

So this introduction of wolves have already started ruining the hunting for some areas where we have to compete against the wolf. I was in the blues hiking with a friend where we came across what only way to explain it is a massacre. Dropped over a ridge and there were 12 deer all killed wolf tracks everywhere and only one was ate on. The rest were just killed. So when the deer and elk numbers dwindle to nothing they turn there sites on easier prey the cow. Now when i say that that means a lot a small rancher could lose up to 5 or 6 calves or cows to them and that is peoples livelihoods thats taking money out of there hands for there mortgage there truck thats barely holding together. So what i say all its going to do is hurt the people in the end the hunters wont come to the state and spend money and the people will lose income from the devastation they will cause in the long run.