

April Ellis

How are y'all going to recover or conserve the wolf population if you keep killing them? Research has proven time and time again that the only way to conserve much of our environment is to let the wolves come back in healthy numbers. It's been proven so much that Washington public schools teach Elementary schoolers just how important wolves are to our environment. So why kill them like you have?