

Heather Boylan

No more shooting wildlife. End of story. If you want to go live in the middle of nowhere, you will not menace the animals and plants that already live there. If you can't handle being in nature, because nature is there - you belong back in town.