Do you have general comments about the scope of Washington's updated wolf conservation and management plan?

All I would ask is that data from Idaho and western Montana be taken seriously. As hunters fund a huge part of all conservation efforts, why would you jeopardize their quarry just for the sake of appeasing people that will never be effected by wolves one way or another. Hunter retention is already at an all time low and if the ungulate herd numbers decline severely in areas with wolves, even less hunters will go afield. Wolf introduction has been an absolute train wreck in Idaho and Montana, don't let it get that far with Washington.
