

Alec Corbett

What is your gender?

Male

Age?

28

County (or Counties) of Primary Residence?

Pierce

Residential setting:

Rural

Do you identify yourself as any of the following?

Environmentalist

Outdoor Recreationist

WDFW has identified a list of impact topics to include in the Plan/EIS. Impact topics are a means of organizing the discussion of issues and analysis of impacts. Impact topics can be thought of as chapter or section headings in the Plan/EIS.

Please review this list and add other topics, or items that fit under these headings.

Please check the topics you view as most important.

Wolf conservation and monitoring

Wolf classification/status

Wolf management areas

Habitat connectivity

Information and education

Research

Goals objectives strategies and tasks

Do you have general comments about the scope of Washington's updated wolf conservation and management plan?

First replace Kelly Susewind. The guy is a joke who only cares about the desires of his piggy bank (hunters) and not the desires of the vast majority of this state. The state needs to stop killing wolves that come into conflict with livestock. It has been proven time and time again to be ineffective. Second the state needs to do something about Diamond M. Ranch. Work with the forest service to cancel their grazing permit in prime wolf habitat. I don't think that wolf hunting should be allowed in Washington state until all wolf management areas have more than one breeding pair of wolves. Just because one corner of the state has a mostly recovered population it doesn't mean that the states population as a whole is recovered. I understand grazing permits on federal land has nothing to do with WDFW but our public land is for the public, not just ranchers and the public should have more involvement with decisions being made about our wildlife. There is too much sway from the cattle industry when decisions about wolves are made. The vast majority of the population of this state doesn't hunt and doesn't want grazing on public lands and it's time the WDFW listens to the majority and not its hunting and ranching goons.