WDFW has identified a list of impact topics to include in the Plan/EIS. Impact topics are a means of organizing the discussion of issues and analysis of impacts. Impact topics can be thought of as chapter or section headings in the Plan/EIS.

Please review this list and add other topics, or items that fit under these headings.

Please check the topics you view as most important.

Wolf-livestock conflicts

Wolf-ungulate interactions

Wolf hunting

Do you have general comments about the scope of Washington's updated wolf conservation and management plan?

I would encourage the WDFW to manage wolves, and all other predators, using the modern hunter conservation model that have be used for decades for all our other species. Stop trying to manage them based off of the emotional responses of people that dont hunt, work or live where these top predators are.

I dont hate wolves and think they belong here and have an important role to play in nature. They are being used as a tool to reduce hunting and farming by people that want to destroy the hunter conservation model. Trying to please those people will only lead to less opportunity for hunters and ranchers and ultimately reduce conservation dollars that our wildlife and your department relies on.

Open hunting seasons on wolves as soon as sustainable numbers are reached.
