

Christal Higdon

Alaska's spill prevention and response rules are working just fine. ADEC should not waste our public dollars on a process that will ultimately rollback safeguards for Alaska's prized fisheries and our coastal communities. These resources are highly valued for residents and the economy of Alaska and should be protected.