

Charlotte LaRue

Please leave the safeguards in place, even if they are considered burdensome having them is an important step in the process of protecting the environment that could be potentially irreversibly impacted. Weakening these processes will not eliminate any problems. In industries that work with toxic materials, it is logical to insist on preparedness.