

Eric Noll

I have been following this curiously and talked to several vets for adfg who feel this may be overkill since the strain that has been found in AK has not proven fatal. There are many other strains with unknown potencies to our Dalls thawed like to keep out which is the point of testing. Given the increased concentration on pandemics and cost effective prevention this year, I'd ask you to strongly consider requiring testing on all incoming potential transmitters. Thank you