

Angela Sumrall

These regulation changes completely destroy any chance of my small farm being able to produce anything, and therefore deeply affect not only myself but also many other small farms. We fight year in and out to make the best life for our livestock, but in Alaska off grid is a major life component. As a 1st year farmer my family was so excited to be able to produce many things from the safety of our home, but these regulations over reach so many boundaries.