2	Steven Gabelein	Alaska Chadux Network	8200	8-9	22	Recommend adding language about EVATS™: "The Emergency Ship Arrest System and Emergency Vessel Attachment & Towing System (EVATS™), which is considered a standalone system that can be used independently to improve the safety, reliability, and versatility of securing a towline between a disabled vessel and a towing vessel. It is designed for rapid deployment and recoverability in heavy weather and low-light conditions, establishing a safer distance between the disabled vessel and the responding towing vessel. The Alaska Chadux Network has staged an EVATS™ in Kodiak, Alaska. ACN's EVATS™ can be mobilized via helicopter, resident ocean-going tugs, or redeployed to suitable vessels in other ports in the event this towing system is needed to render assistance to a vessel disabled and adrift, preventing the vessel from running aground as another capability to reduce risk and close the time response gap."	Similar to the Aleutian Islands Waterways Safety Plan (https://www.aleutianislandswsc.org/waterways-safety-plan) pages 41-43, add text in addition to ADEC's Emergency Towing System section.
