

Ken Stewart

There is a waste crisis rooted in hyperconsumption that is costing the lives of frontline communities, and the climate.

This solid waste plan created to guide 20 years of waste management, is severely lacking: It encourages false solutions like incineration, and provides no policy suggestions for ways to REDUCE-- the only solution to the crisis.