

Emma Marlar

The MPCA must stop weaponizing and distorting science to force communities to accept a risk even scientists don't fully understand and are actively debating. It must take precautions when it comes to people's health and lives, and acknowledge the real impacts of incineration. If we want to take care of our people, we should be making choices that show that.