

Bob Jalonen

Sulphates are a dirty word when it comes to mixing with water. I suspect this is common knowledge. I am hopeful that the MPCA will be given the authority to review a thorough site specific sulphate standard application for waters on which wild rice is produced. Thus protecting a food that is important to the Indigenous community.