

Lynn Levine

I'm writing to urge you to provide the most stringent possible restrictions on site specific sulfate standards for wild rice.

I am terribly upset by the continuing erosion of protections for air, water, crops and everything else. I am in my late 80s and for 50 years I have worked hard to try to stop the Earth from reaching the crisis level it is now reached.

A common phrase we used to say is if you're going in the wrong direction slowing down is not the answer but rather turning around.

Please turn around.

Thank you!
